

AUSTRALEARN SYDNEY JD ENTRY

Sydney Law School

Inaugurated in 1855, Sydney Law School had a tremendous impact on Australia's legal profession, its judiciary, political system and business institutions. The first Law School to be established in Australia, Sydney Law School's strong history is matched by its innovative approach to education and professional practice. Its many features are underpinned by its commitment to excellence in legal education.

This innovation is reflected in the reputation of its undergraduate programs and the extensive range of graduate programs. The Law School places special emphasis on international and comparative law, maintains a strong profile in taxation, corporate and criminal law, and delivers programs in specialist areas such as environmental and health law.

Originally located in Sydney's Central Business District, the Sydney Law School embarked on an exciting new phase upon its move to the heart of the University's beautiful Camperdown Campus. The new Law School is a flagship building, creating a new gateway to the University from the City and representing a new era for law teaching at The University of Sydney. It provides prestigious and well-equipped accommodation as befits one of Australia's leading law schools and offers the highest quality teaching, learning, and research facilities for students and staff.

The Sydney JD

With its first intake in 2011, the Sydney Juris Doctor (JD) ushers in a new era for Sydney Law School and its teaching of law at graduate level. A comprehensive three-year degree, it will have an unrivalled international focus, where students receive a comprehensive overview of the practice and profession of the law from a global, transnational and international standpoint.

Exclusive features of the Sydney JD include:

- The opportunity to study two core units in International Law – Public International Law and Private International Law
- The opportunity to complete a unit in Advanced Legal Research, consisting of a 5,000 Research Paper or a research internship with a member of the Law School's academic or adjunct faculty staff
- Access to approximately 120 elective units of study across all areas of specialisation taught at the Sydney Law School, including comparative and international law
- Exchange opportunities in North America, Europe and the Asia Pacific at institutions including Harvard, Humboldt and the National University of Singapore
- Off-shore study in China, Japan, the United Kingdom and Nepal

Location

Sydney as a destination has many benefits. It is one of the world's most beautiful harbour cities, with the Sydney Harbour Bridge and Sydney Opera House scenic icons recognised across the world. It is also home to some of Australia's most famous beaches that include not only Bondi Beach but Sydney's well-loved beaches on the northern and southern peninsulas. Bronte Beach, Cronulla Beach and Manly Beach also provide a very popular alternative.

Sydney has a thriving nightlife not just in its city centre but around its various suburbs. There's a vast array of pubs, clubs, bars, cafes and restaurants to choose from that reflect the multicultural status of this fine city. While Sydney is still a young city, there's a multitude of superb scenery and remarkable architecture to enjoy that outlines Sydney and Australia's unique history.

Sydney is also conveniently located to many of Australia's finest National Parks, as well as many smaller national parks and state forests, offering visitors a superb environment for bushwalking, picnics and soft adventure activities, all within easy reach of the city centre. For information on Sydney as a city, visit www.sydneyaustralia.com

The Sydney Law School is located on the main campus of the University of Sydney, five minutes from the centre of the city. The suburbs of Glebe and Newtown, next to the main campus, are centres of student life - with shops and cafes offering food of all types. The graceful historic buildings and spacious grass lawns and gardens create an atmosphere of tradition, serenity and elegance which students find inspirational.
